EXPLANATORY NOTE

At present, the order of seniority of Magistrates is Chief Magistrate, Deputy Chief Magistrates and Magistrates. The object of this Regulation is to distinguish certain Magistrates (who are appointed to a public office having a salary more than the salary of other Magistrates) by adding them to the order of seniority. These “Designated Magistrates” are senior to other Magistrates (except the Chief Magistrate and Deputy Chief Magistrates). The public offices concerned include Chairman of the Licensing Court, State Coroner, Chief Industrial Magistrate and Senior Children’s Magistrate.

The Regulation also provides that a Designated Magistrate is senior to another Designated Magistrate if the Designated Magistrate’s salary is higher than the other Designated Magistrate’s salary or, if the salaries are the same, the Designated Magistrate was appointed to the public office concerned before the other Designated Magistrate was appointed to the other public office.
