EXPLANATORY NOTE

Clause 17 (1) of the Chiropractors and Osteopaths Regulation 1991 is concerned with advertising by a registered chiropractor or registered osteopath (a “registered practitioner”). It prohibits advertising of certain kinds (e.g. advertising that is “false, misleading or deceptive”). However, it is concerned only with advertising relating to a registered practitioner’s qualifications or to the premises where he or she practises.

The object of this Regulation is to widen the scope of the subclause so that it will cover advertising relating to any aspect of the registered practitioner’s practice.

The Regulation is made under section 65 (2) (i) of the Chiropractors and Osteopaths Act 1991.
