24 Definition	14
In this Part, amending Act means the Crimes and Courts Legislation Amendment Act 2006 .	15 16
25 Deemed commencement of, and application of, amendments to section 3B (1) (a)	17 18
(1) The amendment to section 3B (1) (a) made by the amending Act extends to civil liability arising, and any award of damages in respect of such civil liability made, before the commencement of that amendment.	19 20 21 22
(2) For the avoidance of doubt, any reference to “civil liability in respect of an intentional act that is done with intent to cause injury or death or that is sexual assault or other sexual misconduct” in section 3B (1) (a) before the commencement of this clause is taken to read (and always to have read) “civil liability of a person in respect of an intentional act that is done by the person with intent to cause injury or death or that is sexual assault or other sexual misconduct committed by the person”.	23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30
(3) The provisions of this Schedule that apply to section 3B (1) (a) apply to that paragraph as if it read (and always had read) as provided by subclause (2).	31 32 33
(4) This clause does not affect any final determination of legal proceedings made by a court or tribunal before the commencement of this clause.	34 35 36

(5) However, this clause does apply to legal proceedings (being proceedings that have not been finally determined by a court or tribunal) that relate to the application of Division 6 of Part 2A to an award of damages, even if the proceedings that resulted in that award being made have been finally determined by a court or tribunal.

26 Definition of “offender in custody” in section 26A

(1) The definition of offender in custody or offender in section 26A (1) includes, and is taken to have always included, the following:

(a) an inmate within the meaning of the Correctional Centres Act 1952,

(b) a prisoner within the meaning of the Prisons Act 1952,

(c) a periodic detainee within the meaning of the Periodic Detention of Prisoners Act 1981,

(d) an offender for whom a home detention order was made under the Home Detention Act 1996,

(e) a person performing community service work under, or attending a place in compliance with the requirements of, a community service order as provided by the Community Service Orders Act 1979, whether or not the person is an offender in custody under any other paragraph of this definition.

(2) This clause extends to civil liability arising, and any award of damages in respect of such civil liability made, before the commencement of this clause.

(3) This clause does not affect any final determination of legal proceedings made by a court or tribunal before the commencement of this clause.

(4) However, this clause does apply to legal proceedings (being proceedings that have not been finally determined by a court or tribunal) that relate to the application of Division 6 of Part 2A to an award of damages, even if the proceedings that resulted in that award being made have been finally determined by a court or tribunal.

Explanatory note

Section 3B (1) (a) of the Civil Liability Act 2002 provides that the provisions of that Act (subject to some specified exceptions) do not apply to civil liability in respect of an intentional act that is done with intent to cause injury or death or that is sexual assault or other sexual misconduct. This provision prevents a person who has carried out such an act, when sued by their victim, from benefiting from the provisions of the Civil Liability Act 2002 that aid defendants.

Item [1] of the proposed amendments amends section 3B (1) (a) of the Civil Liability Act 2002 to make it clear that the exclusion in that paragraph applies only in relation to the civil liability of the person who carried out the intentional act to a person who suffered from that act. The amendment will make it clear that the exclusion does not apply in other circumstances, for example, where a victim of such an intentional act sues a third party for negligence for failing to prevent the act. (As a more specific example, the exclusion will not apply where an offender in custody, who has been intentionally injured by another offender in custody, sues the Department of Corrective Services for negligence for failing to prevent the intentional injury.) In such a case, the third party defendant will be able to benefit from the provisions of the Civil Liability Act 2002 that aid defendants.

Item [2] of the proposed amendments inserts savings and transitional provisions (proposed Part 9 (clauses 24–26)) into Schedule 1 to the Civil Liability Act 2002.

Proposed clause 25, as far as possible, gives the amendment in item [1] retrospective application so that it applies as if the change it made commenced at the same time as section 3B (1) (a) commenced.

Part 2A of the Civil Liability Act 2002 contains special provisions relating to offenders in custody. Section 26A of the Act defines the term “offender in custody” or “offender”. The definition includes the following types of person covered by the Crimes (Administration of Sentences) Act 1999: inmates, offenders serving their imprisonment by way of periodic detention, offenders serving their imprisonment by way of home detention and persons performing community service work under, or attending a place in compliance with the requirements of, a community service order.

Proposed clause 26 provides that the definition of offender in custody or offender in section 26A (1) includes, and is taken to always have included, persons who were “inmates”, “prisoners”, “periodic detainees”, “offenders for whom a home detention order was made” or “persons performing community service work under, or attending a place in compliance with the requirements of, a community service order” under legislation that preceded the commencement of the Crimes (Administration of Sentences) Act 1999.

The proposed clauses extend to civil liability arising, and any award of damages in respect of such civil liability made, before the commencement of the clauses. However, those proposed clauses will not affect any final determination of legal proceedings made by a court or tribunal before the commencement of those clauses.

1.6 Civil Procedure Act 2005 No 28

Schedule 3 Rule-making powers

Insert “and other means of obtaining access to information, documents or things” after “inspection” in clause 2.

Explanatory note

The proposed amendment extends the rule-making power in Schedule 3 to the Civil Procedure Act 2005 so as to enable rules to be made in relation to obtaining access to information, documents or things relating to court proceedings.

Explanatory note

Item [1] of the proposed amendments to the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999 makes it clear that a court has power, on convicting a person, to dispose of the proceedings without imposing any further penalty. It also provides that the disposal of the proceedings without further penalty is to be treated as part of the sentence of the offender, for the purposes of Acts that provide for appeals against sentence. This would facilitate an appeal by the Crown in the circumstances provided for in those Acts.

Items [2]–[4] amend the provisions of the Act relating to the suspension of sentences on condition that the offender enter into a good behaviour bond, and any subsequent revocation of that bond. The proposed amendments remove the requirement that the court set a non-parole period at the time of imposing a suspended sentence. Instead, the setting of a non-parole period (and other functions of the court under Part 4 of the Act) are to be exercised by the court if it revokes the good behaviour bond. The amendments also remove a requirement, that is redundant in relation to suspended sentences, that the court disregard any part of a sentence that has already been served when it considers whether a sentence should be served by way of periodic detention or home detention.

Items [5] and [6] provide for the appointment of additional members of the New South Wales Sentencing Council. The 3 additional members are to be:

- (a) a person with expertise or experience in corrective services, and
- (b) a person with expertise or experience in juvenile justice, and
- (c) a representative of the Attorney General's Department.

Item [8] is a consequential amendment.

Item [7] confers an additional function on the Sentencing Council, being the function of educating the public about sentencing matters.

Items [9] and [10] provide for the transitional application of the amendments and enable the making of savings and transitional regulations as a consequence of the amendments.

(b) in relation to an appeal under subsection (1) (b)—by such single judge of the Supreme Court as the Chief Justice may direct unless the judge, on the application of either party or of his or her own motion, considers that the appeal raises matters of principle or it is otherwise in the interests of justice for the appeal to be dealt with by the full Court of Criminal Appeal and notifies the Chief Justice accordingly, in which case the appeal is to be heard and determined by such 3 or more judges of the Supreme Court as the Chief Justice may direct.	21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30

	Background	23
	Under the Drug Court Act 1998 , a person is referred to the Drug Court by another court and is initially dealt with under current section 7 by the Drug Court convicting and sentencing the person. That sentence, the “initial sentence”, is suspended, to allow participation in the Drug Court program. Under section 11 there is provision for the termination of the offender’s program. After a drug offender’s program is terminated, the Drug Court reconsiders the initial sentence and determines a “final sentence” under section 12.	24 25 26 27 28 29 30
	The Court of Criminal Appeal in R v Toman [2004] NSWCCA 31 found that the Crown may appeal against any sentence imposed on an offender under the Drug Court Act 1998 including an initial sentence imposed by the Drug Court under current section 7. However, an offender only has a right to appeal against a final sentence under section 12 of that Act (see section 5AF of the Criminal Appeal Act 1912).	31 32 33 34 35
	The Court in R v Toman [2004] NSWCCA 31 also considered section 12 (4) of the Drug Court Act 1998 , which provides that a final sentence determined for a drug offender in relation to an offence is not to be greater than the initial sentence imposed on the drug offender in relation to that offence. The Court held that section 12 (4) applied to an appeal court in the same way as to a judge of first instance, so as to limit the final sentence imposed on appeal to one no greater than the initial sentence.	36 37 38 39 40 41

Proposed amendments	1
Items [2]–[5] of the proposed amendments to the Criminal Appeal Act 1912 revise appeal rights in relation to the Drug Court. The proposed amendments will have the effect that:	2
	3
	4
(a) an appeal may not be made, by either the Crown or the offender, against an initial sentence imposed by the Drug Court, and	5
	6
(b) where the offender or the Crown appeals against a final sentence imposed on a Drug Court program participant under section 12 of the Drug Court Act 1998 , the Court of Criminal Appeal may, if it allows the appeal, impose a greater sentence than the Drug Court participant’s initial sentence, despite section 12 (4) of the Drug Court Act 1998 , and	7
	8
	9
	10
	11
(c) appeals by offenders against sentences imposed by the Drug Court on indictment are to be heard and determined by the Court of Criminal Appeal constituted by 2 or 3 judges, and	12
	13
	14
(d) Crown appeals against sentences imposed by the Drug Court on indictment are to be heard and determined by the Court of Criminal Appeal constituted by 3 judges, and	15
	16
	17
(e) all appeals (whether by the Crown or the offender) against sentences imposed by the Drug Court in matters dealt with summarily are to be determined before a single judge of the Supreme Court, provided that the judge has the discretion to remit the application to the full court of the Court of Criminal Appeal for determination, either on the judge’s own motion or on the application of either party, if the appeal raises matters of principle or it is otherwise in the interests of justice to do so.	18

Item [1] of the proposed amendments to the Criminal Appeal Act 1912 ensures that the revocation of a good behaviour bond and any order made as a consequence of that revocation is treated as part of the sentence of an offender and can be appealed under that Act.	25

Part Provisions consequent on enactment of Crimes and Courts Legislation Amendment Act 2006	3 4 5
Existing warrants	6
Section 237 (1A)–(1C), as inserted by the Crimes and Courts Legislation Amendment Act 2006 , does not apply to a warrant issued before the commencement of those provisions.	7 8 9
Explanatory note	10
The term public officer is defined in section 3 of the Criminal Procedure Act 1986 . Item [1] of the proposed amendments establishes an evidentiary presumption that a person purporting to be a public officer is acting in an official capacity.	11 12 13
Sections 48, 49, 173 and 174 of the Criminal Procedure Act 1986 provide that various authorised persons may commence proceedings. Items [2], [3], [12] and [13] make it clear that section 14 of the Criminal Procedure Act 1986 or authorisation under any other law is sufficient authorisation for the purposes of those sections.	14 15 16 17
Sections 52 and 177 of the Criminal Procedure Act 1986 require a court attendance notice issued by a police officer to be served on the accused by a police officer. Items [4] and [14] provide that a court attendance notice issued by a police officer may also be served by a prosecutor.	18 19 20 21
Sections 52 (4) and 177 (4) of the Criminal Procedure Act 1986 require that an endorsement of service be filed with a court when a court attendance notice is issued. It was held in Sharman v Director of Public Prosecutions (2006) NSWSC 135 that a failure to comply with this requirement may render the proceedings invalidly commenced. Items [5] and [15] remove the link between service of a court attendance notice and the jurisdiction of the court. Items [6] and [16] remove redundant provisions relating to when proceedings commence.	22 23 24 25 26 27 28
At present, prosecution evidence in committal proceedings is given in the form of written statements of witnesses that are tendered in evidence at the proceedings. Section 79 of the Criminal Procedure Act 1986 requires that a written statement be endorsed in accordance with the rules. Item [7] provides an exemption for children from having to endorse a written statement where the statement is a transcript certified under section 76.	29 30 31 32 33 34
Item [8] gives a Magistrate a discretion to admit prosecution evidence in committal proceedings despite a non-compliance with the requirements of the relevant provisions of the Act or the rules if the Magistrate is satisfied that the non-compliance is trivial in nature or that there are other good reasons to excuse the non-compliance and admit the evidence.	35 36 37 38 39
Currently, section 91 of the Criminal Procedure Act 1986 allows a Magistrate to direct a person who has provided a written statement to attend to give oral evidence at the committal proceedings in exceptional circumstances. Item [9] amends section 91 to clarify that a direction may be given in respect of any written statement that the prosecution intends to tender as evidence in the proceedings. Items [10] and [11] remove any doubt that the tendering of the written statement to the Magistrate, for the purpose of a directions hearing under section 91, prevents the Magistrate from giving such a direction.	40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47

Items [17], [18] and [19] enable summary offence proceedings relating to a death that is the subject of a coronial inquest to be commenced within 6 months from when the inquest concludes or no later than 2 years after the commission of the offence, whichever occurs first.	1 2 3 4
Currently there is no provision in the Criminal Procedure Act 1986 that enables a warrant issued under that Act to expire. Items [20] and [21] make provision for the expiration of arrest warrants issued under the Act. Item [23] inserts a savings and transitional provision making it clear that the amendments do not apply to existing warrants.	5 6 7 8 9
Item [22] enables savings and transitional regulations to be made as a consequence of the proposed amendments.	10 11

Explanatory note	22
Part 2 of the Drug Court Act 1998 concerns the acceptance of persons into Drug Court programs and the administration of those programs. At present, Division 1 of Part 2 provides for the acceptance of persons into programs during proceedings for offences and Division 1A provides for the acceptance of persons into programs during proceedings for breach of conditions of good behaviour bonds. There is some repetition of provisions in the two Divisions.	23

	28
Section 7 of the Drug Court Act 1998 provides that when a person is allowed into the Drug Court program, he or she is given an initial sentence of imprisonment that is suspended to allow participation in the Drug Court program. That sentencing is required to be carried out in accordance with the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999 . However, that Act provides for certain procedures, such as the setting of a non-parole period, that are not relevant to an initial sentence which is not required to be served. The Drug Court developed a practice of only taking into account the objective features of the offences, together with the offender's plea of guilty and, where appropriate, any time served in custody prior to initial sentence that was referable to the offence. The Court would leave consideration of subjective matters for consideration at final sentencing, after program termination, to minimise delays in offenders entering the Drug Court program. It was also the practice of the Drug Court not to set a non-parole period at initial sentence such that the sentence imposed only reflected the head sentence in relation to the offence. NSWCCA 384, the Court of Criminal Appeal found that section 7 (2A) of the Drug Court Act 1998 and section 44 of the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999 did not permit the Drug Court's practice of not setting a non-parole period at initial sentence.	1 2 3
Item [7] of the proposed amendments consolidates Divisions 1 and 1A into one Division that applies to both proceedings for offences and proceedings for breach of conditions of good behaviour bonds, subject to the following modifications:	4 5 6
(a) proposed section 7 (1) (a) provides that if the person against whom the proceedings are brought is already a Drug Court participant, the duty of a court to refer proceedings under section 98 of the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999 extends to all courts, not merely prescribed courts (those courts in the Drug Court's catchment area in Western Sydney),	7 8 9 10 11
(b) proposed section 7 (2) provides that the duty of a court, before whom an offender appears under section 98 of the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999 in connection with an alleged failure to comply with the conditions of a good behaviour bond, to consider the person's eligibility for the Drug Court program applies only to proceedings for the breach of bonds imposed under section 12 (Suspended sentences) of the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999 (at present the duty applies to the breach of the conditions of any good behaviour bond),	12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19
(c) proposed sections 7A (4) and 7B (5) provide that when imposing an initial sentence on a Drug Court program participant, the Drug Court is not obliged to fix a non-parole period under the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999 or to comply with other provisions of that Act about commencement dates, release dates and conditions of parole (final sentences, which are the sentences to actually be served, are still required to be full sentences in accordance with the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999),	20 21 22 23 24 25 26
(d) proposed sections 7A (8) and 7D (8) restate existing sections 7 (4) and 8 (5) (which provide that the Drug Court may, at the same time as convicting and sentencing a person with respect to an offence for which the person has been referred to the Drug Court, convict and sentence that person for any other offence to which he or she has pleaded guilty) so as to provide that the bringing in of other offences and proceedings may occur at the same time as the first mentioned conviction and sentencing or at any later time,	27 28 29 30 31 32 33
(e) proposed section 7E (2) provides that the Drug Court may also deal with proceedings under section 98 or 99 of the Crimes (Sentencing Procedure) Act 1999 in relation to a sentence on the revocation of good behaviour bonds,	34 35 36
(f) existing section 8AA (5) is not remade because it is redundant,	37
(g) existing sections 8AC (3) (b) and 8AC (6), which require that any sentence imposed on breach of bond proceedings that are finalised after the person enters the program to be ordered to be served cumulatively with the initial sentence, are not remade because they limit discretion in sentencing.	38 39 40 41
Items [1]–[6] and [8] of the proposed amendments make consequential amendments.	42
Item [9] provides for the making of savings and transitional regulations consequent on the proposed amendments.	43 44
Item [10] provides that the proposed amendments do not apply to any proceedings commenced before the commencement of the amendments and updates certain references in a regulation.	45 46 47
