Outline of provisions

Clause 1 sets out the name (also called the short title) of the proposed Act.

Clause 2 provides for the commencement of the proposed Act.

Clause 3 is a formal provision that gives effect to the amendments to the Acts specified in the Schedules.

Schedule 1 Amendment of Administrative Decisions Tribunal Act 1997 No 76

Schedule 1 [1] changes the composition of the Retail Leases Division of the Administrative Decisions Tribunal for the purpose of exercising its functions in relation to unconscionable conduct claims. Under the new arrangements the Retail Leases Division may be constituted by a current, retired or acting judge of any court of this State, the Commonwealth, another State or a Territory or by a Deputy President.

Schedule 1 [2] allows regulations of a savings or transitional nature to be made as a consequence of the enactment of the proposed Act.

Schedule 1 [3] validates the constitution of the Tribunal, in connection with unconscionable conduct claims, by certain members, the assignment of those members to the Retail Leases Division of the Tribunal, and other things done that would have been validly done if the Tribunal had been properly constituted.

Schedule 2 Amendment of Anti-Discrimination Act 1977 No 48

Schedule 2 [1] requires the Administrative Decisions Tribunal, when dealing with a complaint under the Act, to have regard to any proceedings in relation to the same facts in another jurisdiction and the outcome of any such proceedings.

Schedule 2 [2] allows regulations of a savings or transitional nature to be made as a consequence of the enactment of the proposed Act.

Schedule 3 Amendment of Constitution Act 1902 No 32

Schedule 3 extends Part 9 of the Constitution Act 1902, which relates to the judiciary, to the additional judicial office of associate Judge of the Supreme Court. The amendment is made in accordance with section 7B (8) of the Act. The new office replaces the office of master of the Supreme Court, which is abolished under the amendments set out in Schedule 13. The abolition of the office is permitted by section 56 of the Constitution Act 1902.

Schedule 4 Amendment of Criminal Appeal Act 1912 No 16

Schedule 4 [1] provides for the appointment of a registrar of the Court of Criminal Appeal, and other court officers, under the Public Sector Employment and Management Act 2002. This replaces a requirement that the registrar and other officers be appointed by the Governor. That is, appointments will be made by the appropriate Department Head under that Act, similar to appointments to the Supreme Court. The new provision also makes it clear that a registrar of the Supreme Court, and an officer of the Supreme Court, may exercise the functions of registrar or officer of the Court of Criminal Appeal.

Schedule 4 [2] validates the appointment, before the commencement of the amendments, of registrars and officers of the Court of Criminal Appeal. It also confirms that registrars of the Supreme Court, and other officers of the Supreme Court, were always entitled to exercise the functions of registrar or officer of the Court of Criminal Appeal.

Schedule 5 Amendment of Judges' Pensions Act 1953 No 41

The amendments provide that a de facto partner of a judge has the same entitlement in respect of a pension or benefit provided under the Judges' Pensions Act 1953 as a person who is married to a judge. De facto partner of a person means a person who is in a de facto relationship (within the meaning of the Property (Relationships) Act 1984) with the other person. The amendments will apply to the de facto partner of a judge, retired judge, former judge or former acting judge who dies on or after 1 May 2005. Provision is made for the determination of competing claims between spouses. The amendments are set out in Schedule 5 [1]–[23] and [27].

Schedule 5 [24] and [25] are consequential on the amendments set out in Schedule 13, which abolish the office of master of the Supreme Court and create a new office of associate Judge of the Supreme Court.

Schedule 5 [26] allows regulations of a savings or transitional nature to be made as a consequence of the enactment of the proposed Act.

Schedule 6 Amendment of Jury Act 1977 No 18

The Jury Act 1977 requires a juror to take an oath or affirmation before serving as a juror to the effect that the person will give a true verdict according to the evidence. Schedule 6 [3] allows the oath or affirmation to be administered in the manner currently provided for by the Oaths Act 1900 or in a prescribed manner. The principal difference between the administration of an oath or affirmation under the Oaths Act 1900 and the prescribed manner of administering an oath or affirmation is that it is not necessary for a religious text to be used in administering an oath. The amendments also provide for a suggested form of words to be used when administering the oath or affirmation and make it clear that an absence of any religious belief does not affect the validity of an oath. Schedule 6 [2] makes a consequential amendment.

Schedule 6 [1] is a consequential amendment to the amendments set out in Schedule 13, which abolish the office of master of the Supreme Court and create a new office of associate Judge of the Supreme Court.

Schedule 6 [4] allows regulations of a savings or transitional nature to be made as a consequence of the enactment of the proposed Act.

Schedule 7 Amendment of Justices of the Peace Act 2002 No 27

Schedule 7 [1] makes it clear that the oath taken by a person when appointed as a justice of the peace remains valid upon that person's re-appointment.

Schedule 7 [3] makes it clear that the amendment made by Schedule 7 [1] applies to any re-appointment made on or after the commencement of that amendment regardless of when the person being re-appointed was first appointed as a justice of the peace.

Schedule 7 [2] allows regulations of a savings or transitional nature to be made as a consequence of the enactment of the proposed Act.

Schedule 8 Amendment of Land and Environment Court Act 1979 No 204

The amendments confer the following powers on the Land and Environment Court:

- (a) the power to refer matters for mediation or neutral evaluation without the need for consent of the parties (Schedule 8 [1] and [2]),
- (b) the power to order costs against a solicitor whose serious neglect, serious incompetence or serious misconduct delays proceedings (Schedule 8 [3]),
- (c) the power to order that an instrument be executed by a nominated person if a person does not comply with an order of the Court directing that person to execute any conveyance, contract or other document (Schedule 8 [4]).

Schedule 8 [5] contains provisions of a savings and transitional nature.

Schedule 9 Amendment of Legal Profession Act 2004 No 112

At present, the Legal Profession Act 2004 sets a cap on the amount of costs that can be claimed in respect of legal services provided in connection with a personal injury claim if the amount recovered does not exceed $100,000. Schedule 9 [2] increases the cap in certain circumstances, where the claim is made by proceedings in the District Court. The circumstances are:

- (a) where the Court refers the matter to arbitration and the matter is later the subject of a full or limited rehearing, or
- (b) where the decision of the Court is appealed.

The increased cap applies only in respect of legal services provided to the respondent to the rehearing application or appeal.

Schedule 9 [1] is a consequential amendment.

Schedule 9 [3] allows regulations of a savings or transitional nature to be made as a consequence of the enactment of the proposed Act.

Schedule 10 Amendment of Local Courts Act 1982 No 164

Schedule 10 removes the prohibition on Magistrates wearing court dress.

Schedule 11 Amendment of Oaths Act 1900 No 20

Schedule 11 permits a justice of the peace to take an oath of allegiance or judicial oath before a registrar of a Local Court.

Schedule 12 Amendment of Public Defenders Act 1995 No 28

Schedule 12 [1] provides that a Senior Officer who, immediately before his or her appointment, held office as a Crown Prosecutor is taken to have been appointed also as a Public Defender and will remain a Public Defender while holding office as a Senior Officer and, subject to the Act, after ceasing to hold that office. This will ensure that Crown Prosecutors appointed as Senior Officers will retain security of tenure on that appointment.

Schedule 12 [2] and [3] allow regulations of a savings or transitional nature to be made as a consequence of the enactment of the proposed Act.

Schedule 13 Amendment of Supreme Court Act 1970 No 52

Abolition of office of master of the Supreme Court

The amendments abolish the office of master of the Supreme Court. The office will be replaced by the new office of associate Judge of the Supreme Court. On the abolition of the office of master, a person holding the office of master or acting master is appointed as an associate Judge or acting associate Judge of the Supreme Court. Other transitional provisions preserve the entitlements of masters and acting masters accrued before the abolition of the office, ensure that the abolition of the office does not affect any current proceedings and provide for the construction of references to abolished office. See Schedule 13 [1], [4]–[27], [31]–[35] and [37].

Schedule 13 [3] confirms that associate Judges are members of the Supreme Court. Schedule 13 [25] and [28] are consequential amendments.

Registrars of the Supreme Court

Schedule 13 [29] confirms that registrars and other officers of the Supreme Court are now appointed by the appropriate Department Head under the Public Sector Employment and Management Act 2002. Schedule 13 [2] includes a consequential amendment.

Schedule 13 [30] allows the powers of a deputy registrar of the Supreme Court to be exercised, with the authority of the Chief Justice, by an officer of the Supreme Court or a registrar or other staff member of a Local Court. Schedule 13 [2] also allows a person acting as such a deputy registrar to exercise the powers of a registrar, but only with the authority of the Chief Justice.

Savings and transitional

Schedule 13 [36] allows regulations of a savings or transitional nature to be made as a consequence of the enactment of the proposed Act.

Schedule 14 Consequential amendments to other Acts

Schedule 14.1 makes an amendment to the Director of Public Prosecutions Act 1986 that is consequential to the amendments set out in Schedule 5 relating to the entitlements of spouses of judges to a pension.

Schedule 14.2–14.7 make amendments as a consequence of the abolition of the office of master of the Supreme Court and the creation of the new office of associate Judge of the Supreme Court. The amendments update references to the office of master of the Supreme Court. The following Acts are amended:

- (a) First State Superannuation Act 1992,
- (b) Judicial Officers Act 1986,
- (c) State Authorities Non-contributory Superannuation Act 1987,
- (d) State Authorities Superannuation Act 1987,
- (e) Statutory and Other Offices Remuneration Act 1975,
- (f) Superannuation Act 1916.

Transitional provisions in Schedule 13 ensure that any other references to the office of master in the Supreme Court in legislation are now read as a reference to associate Judge.
