The provisions of this Part are not to be construed so as to prevent a police officer who is acting as custody manager from also exercising:

- (a) any function in connection with the identification of a detained person, or
- (b) any function under the provisions of Part 2 of the Road Transport (Safety and Traffic Management) Act 1999 (such as carrying out a breath analysis).

- (1) A separate custody record must be opened as soon as practicable for each detained person who is detained at a police station or other place of detention.
- (2) A custody record must be in writing or in electronic form.
- (3) All entries in a custody record must include the time at which the entry is made.
- (4) The time of the event to which an entry in the custody record relates must also be included if the entry is not made within a reasonable time of the occurrence of the event.

16 Inspection of custody record

- (1) The detained person must be permitted to inspect the custody record on request unless the request is unreasonable or cannot reasonably be complied with.
- (2) A legal practitioner, consular official or support person must be permitted to consult the custody record of a detained person as soon as practicable after the legal practitioner, consular official or support person arrives at the place of detention, but only if the detained person authorises such inspection.

17 Additional matters to be recorded in custody record

- (1) In addition to the matters specified in section 356V of the Act, the custody manager must record the following particulars in the custody record for a detained person:
 - (a) in the case of a detained person who has been arrested during the previous 48 hours:
 - (i) the offence or offences for which the person was arrested during that previous 48 hours; and
 - (ii) the investigation period that remains after reduction by so much of any earlier investigation period or periods as occurred within that previous 48 hours,

18 Entry of officer's name and rank

In the case of any action requiring the authority of an officer of a specified rank or the holder of a particular position, the officer's name and rank or the holder's name and position must be noted in the custody record.

19 Right to inspect custody record

The detained person, the support person, and the person's legal representative are each to be permitted to inspect the original custody record after the detained person has been released from police custody so long as they give reasonable notice of their request to do so. A note of any such inspection is to be made in the custody record.

Part 4 General provisions for vulnerable persons

20 Custody manager to assist vulnerable person

The custody manager must, as far as is practicable, assist a vulnerable person in exercising the person's rights under Part 10A of the Act, including any right to make a telephone call to a legal practitioner, support person or other person.

21 Support person may be present

- (1) A vulnerable person is entitled to have a support person present during any investigative procedure in which the person is to participate.
- (2) However, a person who is a vulnerable person solely as a result of being a person of non-English speaking background is entitled to have a support person present only if an interpreter would (in the absence of section 356S (3) of the Act) be required to be arranged for the person under section 356S (1) of the Act but is not required to be arranged because of section 356S (3) of the Act.
- (3) Before any such investigative procedure starts, the custody manager must inform the vulnerable person that he or she is entitled to the presence of a support person during any such investigative procedure.
- (4) If the detained person wishes to have a support person present, the custody manager must, as soon as practicable:
 - (a) give the detained person reasonable facilities to enable the person to arrange for a support person to be present, and
 - (b) allow the person to do so in circumstances in which, so far as is practicable, the communication will not be overheard.
- (5) The custody manager must defer for a reasonable period any such investigative procedure until a support person is present unless the vulnerable person has expressly waived his or her right to have a support person present.
- (6) An investigative procedure is not required to be deferred under subclause (4) for more than 2 hours to allow a support person to arrive at the place of detention.
- (7) A requirement imposed on a custody manager under this clause need not be complied with if the custody manager believes on reasonable grounds that doing so is likely to result in:

- (a) an accomplice of the detained person avoiding arrest, or
 - (b) the concealment, fabrication, destruction or loss of evidence or the intimidation of a witness, or
 - (c) hindering the recovery of any person or property concerned in the offence under investigation, or
 - (d) bodily injury being caused to any other person.
- (8) Further, in the case of a requirement under this clause that relates to the deferral of an investigative procedure, the requirement need not be complied with if the custody manager believes on reasonable grounds that the investigation is so urgent, having regard to the safety of other persons, that the investigative procedure should not be deferred.

22 Rights to support person and to consult with other persons

- (1) A vulnerable person is entitled to a support person under clause 21 or to consult with a friend, relative, guardian or independent person under section 356N (4) of the Act, but not both.
- (2) However, a friend, relative, guardian or independent person who attends the place of detention under section 356N (1) (a) (ii) of the Act at the request of the vulnerable person is not prevented by this clause from acting as a support person if the vulnerable person requests it.
- (3) A particular support person may be excluded from an investigative procedure if he or she unreasonably interferes with it. If this occurs, the detained person concerned is entitled to have another support person present.

23 Child cannot waive right to support person

A vulnerable person who is a child cannot waive his or her right to have a support person present.

24 Waiting time for support person to be disregarded in calculating investigation period

In addition to any time mentioned in section 356F of the Act that is not to be taken into account in determining how much of an investigation period has elapsed, the following times (to the extent that those times are times during which any investigative procedure in which the detained person is to participate is reasonably suspended or deferred) are not to be taken into account in respect of a detained person who is a vulnerable person:

- (a) any time that is required to allow the vulnerable person (or someone else on the person's behalf) to arrange for a support person to attend at the place of detention,

- (b) any time that is required to allow the support person to arrive at the place of detention.

25 Additional information to be included in detention warrant application

If an application for a detention warrant is made in respect of a vulnerable person, the application for the warrant must include reference to the fact that the person is believed to be a vulnerable person, the nature of the person's vulnerability, the identity and relationship of any support person who is present, and any particular precautions that have been taken in respect of the vulnerable person.

26 Support persons and legal practitioners at interviews

- (1) The custody manager is to inform a support person that a support person is not restricted to acting merely as an observer at an interview and may, among other things:
 - (a) assist and support the person being interviewed, and
 - (b) observe whether or not the interview is being conducted properly and fairly, and
 - (c) identify communication problems with the person being interviewed.
- (2) The custody manager is to give a copy of the summary of the provisions of Part 10A referred to in section 356M of the Act to:
 - (a) the support person, and
 - (b) any interpreter for the vulnerable person who attends in person at the place of detention.
- (3) If a support person or a person's legal representative is present during an interview involving a vulnerable person, the support person or legal representative is to be given an opportunity to read and sign the interview record.
- (4) Any refusal by the support person or legal practitioner to sign an interview record when given the opportunity to do so must itself be recorded.

Part 5 Special provisions for vulnerable persons

27 Person responsible for welfare of certain detained persons to be contacted

- (1) If a detained person is a child or a person with impaired intellectual or physical functioning, the custody manager must, as soon as practicable, attempt:
 - (a) to ascertain the identity of the person responsible for the welfare of the detained person, and
 - (b) to contact the person so responsible and advise the person of the detained person's whereabouts and the grounds for the detention.

- (2) In the case of a detained person who has impaired physical functioning, the custody manager must, as soon as practicable, also attempt to determine any specific physical care needs of the detained person and, if reasonably practicable to do so, arrange for those needs to be provided for.

28 Legal representation and legal aid for Aboriginal persons or Torres Strait Islanders

If a detained person is an Aboriginal person or Torres Strait Islander, then, unless the custody manager is aware that the person has arranged for a legal practitioner to be present during questioning of the person, the custody manager must:

- (a) immediately inform the person that a representative of an Aboriginal legal aid organisation will be notified that the person is being detained in respect of an offence, and
- (b) notify such a representative accordingly.

29 Cautioning

- (1) If a detained person who is a vulnerable person is cautioned, the custody manager or other person applying the caution must take appropriate steps to ensure that the person understands the caution.
- (2) If a detained person who is a vulnerable person is cautioned in the absence of a support person, the caution must be repeated in the presence of a support person, if one attends.

Part 6 General

30 Forms for detention warrants

- (1) An application for a detention warrant is to be in Form 1 in Schedule 2.
- (2) A detention warrant is to be in Form 2 in Schedule 2.

31 Record of detention warrant applications

- (1) When a detention warrant is issued, the application for the warrant and the record made under section 356L (1) of the Act in respect of the warrant are to be kept, for at least 6 years after the warrant was issued, at the Local Court at which it was issued or nearest to the place at which it was issued. The application and record may be destroyed after that period.
- (2) During the hours that the Local Court is open to the public, the application and record may be inspected by the detained person to whom they relate or by any other person on behalf of that person.

Schedule 1 Guidelines for custody managers and other police officers

(Clause 14)

Part 1 General guidelines for custody managers

1 Questioning detained person

The custody manager should not put specific questions to the detained person regarding the person's involvement in any offence.

2 Consideration of whether a detained person has certain impaired intellectual functioning

In considering whether a detained person has a total or partial loss of a person's mental functions or a disorder or malfunction that results in a person learning differently from a person without the disorder or malfunction, police officers should consider whether the detained person appears:

- (a) to have difficulty understanding questions and instructions, or
- (b) to respond inappropriately or inconsistently to questions, or
- (c) to have a short attention span, or
- (d) to receive a disability support pension, or
- (e) to reside at a group home or institution, or be employed at a sheltered workshop, or
- (f) to be undertaking education, or to have been educated at a special school or in special education classes at a mainstream school, or
- (g) to have an inability to understand the caution.

3 Detained person's property

The custody manager should ascertain what property a detained person has with him or her when the person comes to the police station or other place of detention, or had taken from him or her on arrest, and should arrange for safekeeping of the property if it remains at the police station or other place of detention.

Part 2 Placing of persons in cells

4 Aboriginal persons and Torres Strait Islanders (adults)

If an Aboriginal person or Torres Strait Islander who is not a child is placed in a police cell:

- (a) wherever possible, that person should be accommodated with another Aboriginal person or Torres Strait Islander who is not a child, and

- (b) the person should not be placed alone in the cell unless there is no reasonably practicable alternative.

5 Aboriginal persons and Torres Strait Islanders (children)

- (1) An Aboriginal person or Torres Strait Islander who is a child should not be placed in a police cell except in exceptional circumstances that make it necessary for the well-being of the child.
- (2) If it is necessary to detain such a child overnight in a police cell, the custody manager should arrange for a support person to remain with the child unless it is not reasonably practicable to do so.

6 Children other than Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander children

- (1) This clause applies to a child who is not an Aboriginal person or Torres Strait Islander.
- (2) A child to whom this clause applies should not be placed in a cell unless:
 - (a) no other secure accommodation is available and the custody manager considers that it is not practicable to supervise the child if the child is not placed in a cell, or
 - (b) the custody manager considers that a cell provides more comfortable accommodation than other secure accommodation in the police station.
- (3) Such a child should not be placed in a cell with a detained person who is not a child except in exceptional circumstances that make it necessary for the well-being of the child.

Part 3 Use of restraints in cells

7 Use of restraints in cells

If a detained person is placed in a locked police cell, no additional restraint should be used within the cell unless absolutely necessary.

Part 4 Use of interpreters

8 Additional requirements

- (1) A police officer should bear in mind that a person with some ability in conversational English may still require an interpreter in order to ensure that the person understands his or her legal rights.

A qualified interpreter is one who is accredited to professional level by the National Accreditation Authority of Translators and Interpreters in the language concerned.
