- (3) Subsection (2) does not limit any other requirement that a court has, apart from that subsection, to record the reasons for its decisions.
- (4) A sentence of imprisonment is not invalidated by a failure to comply with this section.

- (3) In deciding whether to make an order referred to in subsection (1), the court is to have regard to the following factors:

 - (b) the trivial nature of the offence,

 - (d) any other matter that the court thinks proper to consider.

- (5) A person with respect to whom an order under this section is made has the same right to appeal on the ground that the person is not guilty of the offence as the person would have had if the person had been convicted of the offence.

 - (b) directing that the offender be released from custody on condition that the offender enters into a good behaviour bond for a term not exceeding the term of the sentence.
- (2) An order under this section may not be made in relation to a sentence of imprisonment if the offender is subject to some other sentence of imprisonment that is not the subject of such an order.
- (3) Subject to section 99 (1), Part 4 does not apply to a sentence of imprisonment the subject of an order under this section except to the extent to which it deals with setting the term of the sentence.
- (4) An order under this section may be made after a court has decided not to make a home detention order in relation to the sentence of imprisonment. In that case, any non-parole period set for the sentence ceases to have effect when the order under this section is made.

13 Community service orders and good behaviour bonds to be alternative penalties only

A court may not, in relation to the same offence, make both a community service order and an order that provides for the offender to enter into a good behaviour bond.

Division 4 Fines

14 Fines as an additional penalty to good behaviour bond

- (1) A court may impose a fine on an offender in respect of whom it has made an order that provides for the offender to enter into a good behaviour bond if the offence to which the bond relates is an offence for which the penalty that may be imposed (otherwise than under this section) includes a fine.
- (2) A fine imposed as referred to in subsection (1) must not exceed the maximum fine that may be imposed apart from this section.

- (3) Despite subsection (1), a court may not impose a fine on an offender if it has made an order that provides for the offender to enter into a good behaviour bond referred to in section 10 (1) (b).

15 Fines as an additional or alternative penalty to imprisonment for offences dealt with on indictment

- (1) This section applies to all offences dealt with on indictment, other than offences for which the penalty that may be imposed (otherwise than under this section) includes a fine.
- (2) A court may impose a fine not exceeding 1,000 penalty units on an offender whom it convicts on indictment of an offence to which this section applies.
- (3) The fine may be imposed in addition to or instead of any other penalty that may be imposed for the offence.

16 Fines for bodies corporate for offences punishable by imprisonment only

If the penalty that may be imposed (otherwise than under this section) for an offence committed by a body corporate is a sentence of imprisonment only, a court may instead impose a fine not exceeding:

- (a) 2,000 penalty units, in the case of the Supreme Court, the Court of Criminal Appeal, the Land and Environment Court, the Industrial Relations Commission or the District Court, or
- (b) 100 penalty units, in any other case.

17 Penalty units

Unless the contrary intention appears, a reference in any Act or statutory rule to a number of penalty units (whether fractional or whole) is taken to be a reference to an amount of money equal to the amount obtained by multiplying $110 by that number of penalty units.

Division 5 Miscellaneous

18 Interpretation of provisions imposing penalties

- (1) The penalty:
 - (a) specified at the end of a section of an Act (whether or not the section is divided into subsections), or
 - (b) specified at the end of a subsection of a section of an Act, but not at the end of the section, or
 - (c) specified at the end of a section of an Act or subsection of a section of an Act and expressed in such a way as to indicate that it applies to part only of the section or subsection, indicates that a contravention of the section, subsection or part, respectively, is an offence against the Act, punishable on conviction by a penalty not exceeding the penalty so specified.

- (2) For the purposes of subsection (1), a penalty specified at the end of the last subsection of a section is taken not to be specified at the end of the section if a penalty is specified at the end of any previous subsection.
- (3) If:
 - (a) a section of an Act, or a subsection of a section of an Act, provides that a person is guilty of an offence under specified circumstances, and
 - (b) a penalty is specified at the end of the section or subsection and expressed in such a way as to indicate that it applies to the section or subsection,a person who is guilty of such an offence is liable, on conviction, to a penalty not exceeding the penalty so specified.
- (4) This section applies to a statutory rule in the same way as it applies to an Act, subject to any necessary modification.
- (5) This section applies to a provision of an Act or statutory rule except in so far as the contrary intention appears in the Act or statutory rule concerned.

19 Effect of alterations in penalties

- (1) If an Act or statutory rule increases the penalty for an offence, the increased penalty applies only to offences committed after the commencement of the provision of the Act or statutory rule increasing the penalty.
- (2) If an Act or statutory rule reduces the penalty for an offence, the reduced penalty extends to offences committed before the commencement of the provision of the Act or statutory rule reducing the penalty, but the reduction does not affect any penalty imposed before that commencement.
- (3) In this section, a reference to a penalty includes a reference to a penalty that is expressed to be a maximum or minimum penalty.

20 No double jeopardy

If an act or omission constitutes:

- (a) an offence under a law of New South Wales, and
- (b) an offence under a law of the Commonwealth or of some other State or Territory, and a penalty has been imposed on the offender in respect of the offence referred to in paragraph (b), the offender is not liable to any penalty in respect of the offence referred to in paragraph (a).

 - (a) an offence that results in the death of any person, or
 - (b) an offence for which a higher maximum penalty may be imposed if the offence results in the death of any person than may be imposed if the offence does not have that result.
- (4) Nothing in this Division limits any other law by or under which a court may receive and consider a victim impact statement in relation to any offence to which this Division does not apply.

28 When victim impact statements may be received and considered

- (1) If it considers it appropriate to do so, the Supreme Court, Industrial Relations Commission or District Court may receive and consider a victim impact statement at any time after it convicts, but before it sentences, an offender.
- (2) A victim impact statement may also be received and considered by the Supreme Court when it determines an application under Schedule 1 for the determination of a term and a non-parole period for an existing life sentence referred to in that Schedule.
- (3) If the primary victim has died as a direct result of the offence, the Supreme Court, Industrial Relations Commission or District Court must receive a victim impact statement given by a family victim and acknowledge its receipt, and may make any comment on it that the court considers appropriate.

- (4) Despite subsections (1), (2) and (3), the Supreme Court, Industrial Relations Commission or District Court:
 - (a) must not consider a victim impact statement unless it has been filed by or on behalf of the victim to whom it relates or by or on behalf of the prosecutor, and
 - (b) must not consider a victim impact statement given by a family victim in connection with the determination of the punishment for the offence unless it considers that it is appropriate to do so.
- (5) The Supreme Court, Industrial Relations Commission or District Court may make a victim impact statement available to the prosecutor, to the offender or to any other person on such conditions (which must include conditions preventing the offender from retaining copies of the statement) as it considers appropriate.
- (6) In relation to a victim impact statement given by a family victim, this section applies to a Local Court in the same way as it applies to the Supreme Court, Industrial Relations Commission and the District Court.

29 Victim impact statements discretionary

- (2) A victim impact statement may not be received or considered by a court if the victim or any of the victims to whom the statement relates objects to the statement being given to the court.
- (3) The absence of a victim impact statement does not give rise to an inference that an offence had little or no impact on a victim.

30 Formal requirements for victim impact statements

- (1) A victim impact statement must be in writing and must comply with such other requirements as are prescribed by the regulations.
- (2) If a primary victim is incapable of providing information for or objecting to a victim impact statement about the personal harm suffered by the victim, a member of the primary victim's immediate family or other representative of the victim may, subject to the regulations, act on behalf of the victim for that purpose.
- (3) A court may receive and consider a victim impact statement only if it is given in accordance with and complies with the requirements prescribed by or under this Division.

- (4) A court may not take a further offence into account:
 - (a) if the offence is of a kind for which the court has no jurisdiction to impose a penalty, or
 - (b) if the offence is an indictable offence that is punishable with imprisonment for life.

 - (b) no proceedings may be taken or continued in respect of the further offence unless the conviction for the principal offence is quashed or set aside.
- (2) This section does not prevent a court that has taken a further offence into account when dealing with an offender for a principal offence from taking the further offence into account if it subsequently imposes a penalty when sentencing or re-sentencing the offender for the principal offence.
- (3) An admission of guilt made for the purposes of this Division is not admissible in evidence in any proceedings relating to:
 - (a) the further offence in respect of which the admission was made, or
 - (b) any other offence specified in the list of additional charges.

- (5) In or in relation to any criminal proceedings, reference may lawfully be made to, or evidence may lawfully be given of, the fact that a further offence has been taken into account under this Division in imposing a penalty for a principal offence of which an offender has been found guilty if, in or in relation to those proceedings:
 - (a) reference may lawfully be made to, or evidence may lawfully be given of, the fact that the offender was found guilty or convicted of the principal offence, and
 - (b) had the offender been found guilty or convicted of the further offence so taken into account, reference could lawfully have been made to, or evidence could lawfully have been given of, the fact that the offender had been found guilty or convicted of that further offence.

Part 4 Sentencing procedures for imprisonment

Division 1 Setting terms of imprisonment

44 Court to set term of sentence and non-parole period

- (1) When sentencing an offender to imprisonment for an offence, a court is required:
 - (a) firstly, to set the term of the sentence, and
 - (b) secondly, to set a non-parole period for the sentence (that is, the minimum period for which the offender must be kept in detention in relation to the offence).
- (2) The non-parole period must not be less than three-quarters of the term of the sentence, unless the court decides there are special circumstances for it being less, in which case the court must make a record of its reasons for that decision.

- (3) Subsection (2) does not limit any other requirement that a court has, apart from that subsection, to record the reasons for its decisions.
- (4) The failure of a court to comply with the requirements of subsection (2) with respect to a sentence does not invalidate the sentence.
- (5) Schedule 1 has effect in relation to the determination of a term and a non-parole period for an existing life sentence referred to in that Schedule.

45 Court may decline to set non-parole period

- (1) When sentencing an offender to imprisonment for an offence, a court may decline to set a non-parole period for the offence if it appears to the court that it is appropriate to do so:
 - (a) because of the nature of the offence to which the sentence relates or the antecedent character of the offender, or
 - (b) because of any other penalty previously imposed on the offender, or
 - (c) for any other reason that the court considers sufficient.
- (2) If a court declines to set a non-parole period for a sentence of imprisonment, it must make a record of its reasons for doing so.
- (3) Subsection (2) does not limit any other requirement that a court has, apart from that subsection, to record the reasons for its decisions.
- (4) The failure of a court to comply with the requirements of subsection (2) with respect to a sentence does not invalidate the sentence.

46 Court not to set non-parole period for sentence of 6 months or less

A court may not set a non-parole period for a sentence of imprisonment if the term of the sentence is 6 months or less.

47 Commencement of sentence

- (1) A sentence of imprisonment commences:
 - (a) subject to section 70 and to any direction under subsection (2), on the day on which the sentence is imposed, or
 - (b) if the execution of the sentence is stayed under section 80, on the day on which the court decides whether or not to make a home detention order in relation to the sentence.
- (2) A court may direct that a sentence of imprisonment:
 - (a) is taken to have commenced on a day occurring before the day on which the sentence is imposed, or

- (b) commences on a day occurring after the day on which the sentence is imposed, but only if the sentence is to be served consecutively (or partly concurrently and partly consecutively) with some other sentence of imprisonment.
- (3) In deciding whether or not to make a direction under subsection (2) (a) with respect to a sentence of imprisonment, and in deciding the day on which the sentence is taken to have commenced, the court must take into account any time for which the offender has been held in custody in relation to the offence to which the sentence relates.
- (4) The day specified in a direction under subsection (2) (b) must not be later than the day following the earliest day on which it appears (on the basis of the information currently available to the court) that the offender:
- (a) will become entitled to be released from custody, or
 - (b) will become eligible to be released on parole,
- having regard to any other sentence of imprisonment to which the offender is subject.
- (5) A direction under subsection (2) (b) may not be made in relation to a sentence of imprisonment imposed on an offender who is serving some other sentence of imprisonment by way of full-time detention if:
- (a) a non-parole period has been set for that other sentence, and
 - (b) the non-parole period for that other sentence has expired, and
 - (c) the offender is still in custody under that other sentence.
- (6) A sentence of imprisonment starts at the beginning of the day on which it commences or is taken to have commenced and ends at the end of the day on which it expires.

48 Information about release date

- (1) When sentencing an offender to imprisonment for an offence, a court must specify:
- (a) the day on which the sentence commences or is taken to have commenced, and
 - (b) the earliest day on which it appears (on the basis of the information currently available to the court) that the offender will become entitled to be released from custody, or eligible to be released on parole, having regard to:
 - (i) that and any other sentence of imprisonment to which the offender is subject, and
 - (ii) the non-parole periods (if any) for that and any other sentence of imprisonment to which the offender is subject.

Note—

Example No 1: A court sentences an offender to 7 days' imprisonment. The sentence is imposed on a Monday. The court has not set a non-parole period. The offender is not subject to any other sentence of imprisonment. In this example, the court should specify that the sentence commences on the Monday on which it is imposed and that the earliest day on which the offender will become entitled to be released from custody is the following Sunday.

Example No 2: A court sentences an offender to 12 months' imprisonment. The sentence is imposed on 5 May 2000. The court has set a non-parole period of 9 months. The offender is not subject to any other sentence of imprisonment. Because the offender has been remanded in custody for sentencing since 27 April 2000, the court has backdated the commencement of the sentence to that date. In this example, the court should specify that the sentence is taken to have commenced on 27 April 2000 and that the earliest date on which the offender will become entitled to be released on parole is 26 January 2001.

Example No 3: A court sentences an offender to 2 years' imprisonment. The sentence is imposed on 3 June 2000. The court has set a non-parole period of 18 months. The offender is subject to one other sentence of imprisonment in respect of which the offender will become eligible to be released on parole on 21 September 2000. The court has directed that the new sentence is to run consecutively with the other sentence. In this example, the court should specify that the sentence commences on 22 September 2000 and that the earliest date on which the offender will become eligible to be released on parole is 21 March 2002.

- (2) The purpose of this section is to require a court to give information about the likely effect of a sentence.
- (3) The failure of a court to comply with the requirements of this section with respect to a sentence does not invalidate the sentence.

49 Restriction on term of sentence

The term of a sentence of imprisonment:

- (a) must not be more than the maximum term of imprisonment that may be imposed for the offence, and
- (b) must not be less than the shortest term of imprisonment (if any) that must be imposed for the offence.

50 Making of parole orders by court

- (1) When a court imposes a sentence of imprisonment for a term of 3 years or less, being a sentence that has a non-parole period, the court must make an order directing the release of the offender on parole at the end of the non-parole period.
- (2) A parole order may be made under this section even though at the time it is made it appears that the offender may not be eligible for release at the end of the non-parole period because of some other sentence to which the offender is subject.
- (3) The failure of a court to comply with the requirements of this section with respect to a sentence does not invalidate the sentence.

51 Court may impose conditions on parole order

- (1) A court may impose such conditions as it considers appropriate on any parole order made by it.
- (1A) The conditions of a parole order may include conditions requiring that the offender to whom the order relates be subject to supervision prescribed by the regulations under the Crimes (Administration of Sentences) Act 1999 during the period specified by or under the order or those regulations.
- (1B) Despite subsection (1A):
 - (a) the conditions of a parole order with respect to a sentence of imprisonment to be served by way of periodic detention may not include conditions requiring that the offender be subject to supervision, and
 - (b) if an offender subsequently serves a sentence by way of periodic detention, any condition of the parole order that requires the offender to be subject to supervision ceases to have effect.
- (2) The conditions imposed by the court must not be inconsistent with the standard conditions imposed by the regulations under the Crimes (Administration of Sentences) Act 1999.

52 Court's powers on appeal

- (1) If an appeal is made against a conviction or sentence, the court determining the appeal:
 - (a) may vary or rescind any non-parole period set by the sentencing court, or
 - (b) may set a non-parole period for a sentence of imprisonment for which a non-parole period has not been set by the sentencing court.
- (2) Any non-parole period that is varied or set under this section must comply with the requirements of this Division.
- (3) This section does not limit any other power of a court in determining an appeal.

53 Multiple sentences of imprisonment

- (1) When a court imposes more than one sentence of imprisonment on an offender, the court must comply with the requirements of this Division in relation to each sentence.
- (2) The term, and any non-parole period, set under this Division in relation to a sentence of imprisonment is not revoked or varied by a later sentence of imprisonment that the same or some other court subsequently imposes in relation to another offence.

54 Exclusions from Division

This Division does not apply to the sentencing of an offender:

- (a) to imprisonment for life or for any other indeterminate period, or
