Part 2 Minimum conditions of employment for children

Division 1 Conditions of employment

4 Employer to ensure at least minimum conditions provided

- (1) This section applies to the employment of a child by an employer if—
- (a) the child is employed under an agreement or other arrangement entered into on or after 27 March 2006, and
 - (b) the employer of the child is a constitutional corporation that is not bound by a State industrial instrument with respect to the employment of the child, and
 - (c) a State award is in force that covers employees performing similar work to that performed by the child (a comparable State award) and that award does not bind the employer in respect of the employment of the child.
- (2) An employer of a child to whose employment this section applies (an affected employer) must ensure that—
- (a) the child is provided with the same conditions of employment as the minimum conditions of employment for the child, or
 - (b) if the conditions of employment provided to the child are different to the minimum conditions of employment for the child—the conditions of employment provided to the child do not, on balance, result in a net detriment to the child when compared to the minimum conditions of employment.

Note—

A contravention of this section by an affected employer of a child may expose the employer to a civil penalty under section 15.

- (3) The minimum conditions of employment for a child are—
- (a) the conditions of employment for employees performing similar work to that performed by the child for which provision is made from time to time in the comparable State award, and
 - (b) such other conditions of employment for which the industrial relations legislation makes provision that would have applied to the employment of the child if the employer of the child were bound by the comparable State award.
- (4) In determining whether or not an affected employer of a child has provided the child with conditions of employment that, on balance, result in a net detriment to the child when compared to the minimum conditions of employment for the child, an industrial court is to take into account the following matters—
- (a) the no net detriment principles set by the Commission from time to time,
 - (b) any other matter that the court considers relevant.
- (5) For the avoidance of doubt, nothing in this section requires an affected employer of a child to provide a condition of employment to the child if the employer is already required to provide the same condition by or under another law of the State.

5 Full Bench of Commission to set no net detriment principles

- (1) A Full Bench of the Commission is required to set principles (the no net detriment principles) to be followed by an industrial court in determining whether or not an affected employer of a child has provided the child with conditions of employment that, on balance, result in a net detriment to the child when compared to the minimum conditions of employment for the child.
- (2) In determining those principles, the Full Bench of the Commission is to have regard, in particular, to the following—
- (a) evidence about the kinds of occupations and industries in which children are employed,
 - (b) the State awards that apply to those occupations and industries,
 - (c) any industrial relations legislation that may apply generally to the employment of children,
 - (d) any provisions of any such State awards or industrial relations legislation that operate to provide conditions of employment that are particularly important for ensuring the well-being of children who are employed,
 - (e) the provision of any other laws of the State that may be relevant to the employment of children or to their well-being while employed (for example, laws dealing with occupational safety, education or child protection).

- (3) Without limiting subsection (1) or (2), the Full Bench of the Commission may determine that a particular condition or conditions of employment of the kind referred to in subsection (2) (d) is or are of such importance for ensuring the well-being of children who are employed that a failure to provide that condition or those conditions will of itself result in a net detriment to the child when compared to the minimum conditions of employment for the child.
- (4) A Full Bench of the Commission is to review the no net detriment principles at least once every 3 years.
- (5) The no net detriment principles may be set or reviewed on the application of the Minister or on the Commission's own initiative.
- (6) Industrial organisations are entitled to be notified of any proceedings of a Full Bench under this section and to make submissions on the setting or review of the no net detriment principles.
- (7) The Industrial Registrar is to publish the no net detriment principles—
 - (a) if Part 11 (NSW industrial relations website) of Chapter 4 (as inserted by the Industrial Relations Further Amendment Act 2006) has not commenced—in the Industrial Gazette, or
 - (b) if that Part has commenced—on the NSW industrial relations website.
- (8) The initial no net detriment principles are to be set and published under this section within 6 months after the commencement of this section.

6 Exhibition of comparable State awards in workplace

An affected employer of any child must cause a copy of the comparable State award (or the latest official reprint of the award) that is applicable for the purposes of section 4 to the employment of the child at any premises to be exhibited in a conspicuous place at those premises.

Maximum penalty—10 penalty units.

Note—

Part 6 of Chapter 7 of the Industrial Relations Act 1996 (as applied to and for the purposes of this Part by section 16) makes provision with respect to the bringing of criminal and other legal proceedings.

7 Record-keeping requirements

- (1) For each child for whom an employer is an affected employer, the employer is to ensure that records are kept of the following matters—
 - (a) the name of the employer,

- (b) the ACN (if any) and ABN of the employer,
- (c) the name of the child,
- (d) the date of birth of the child as provided to the employer,
- (e) the date on which the child's employment began,
- (f) whether the child's employment is full-time or part-time,
- (g) whether the child's employment is permanent, temporary or casual,
- (h) any remuneration paid to the child,
- (i) the days on which the child works for the employer (including the starting and finishing times and the total number of hours worked on each day),
- (j) if the child's employment is terminated—the date on which the child's employment is terminated,
- (k) such other matters concerning the employment of the child as may be prescribed by the regulations.

- (2) The records are to be kept in the manner and form prescribed by the regulations.
- (3) The employer must ensure that the records are kept for a period of at least 6 years.
- (4) The regulations may make provision for or with respect to the transfer of any such records, or copies of any such records, to the successor of an employer.
- (5) A person who contravenes this section or the regulations under this section is guilty of an offence.

Maximum penalty—20 penalty units.

Note—

The following provisions of the Industrial Relations Act 1996 (as applied to and for the purposes of this Part by section 16) should be noted—

- (a) Section 385 (as applied) enables an inspector to require an employer to produce records required to be kept under this section to the inspector for examination.
- (b) Section 387 (as applied) makes it an offence to fail, without reasonable excuse, to comply with a requirement of an inspector.
- (c) Part 6 of Chapter 7 (as applied) makes provision with respect to the bringing of criminal and other legal proceedings.

Division 2 Compliance notices

8 Issue of compliance notices

- (1) If an inspector is of the opinion that an affected employer of a child—
 - (a) is contravening section 4, or
 - (b) has contravened section 4 in circumstances that make it likely that the contravention will continue or be repeated,the inspector may issue to the employer a notice (in the form, if any, prescribed by the regulations) requiring the employer to remedy the contravention or the matters occasioning it within the period specified in the notice.
- (2) The period within which an affected employer of a child is required by a compliance notice to remedy a contravention or the matters occasioning the contravention must be at least a period of 14 days after the issue of the notice.
- (3) However, an inspector may specify a period that is less than 14 days after the issue of the compliance notice if satisfied that it is reasonably practicable for the employer to comply with the requirements imposed by the notice by the end of that period.
- (4) A compliance notice must—
 - (a) state that the inspector is of the opinion referred to in subsection (1), and
 - (b) state the reasons for that opinion, and
 - (c) include information about appeal rights under this Division against the notice.

9 Compliance notices may include directions

- (1) An inspector may include in a compliance notice directions as to the measures to be taken to remedy any contravention or matter to which the notice relates or to otherwise comply with the notice.
- (2) Without limiting subsection (1), any such direction may offer the person to whom it is issued a choice of ways in which to remedy the contravention or matter or to comply with the notice.

10 Withdrawal of compliance notices

- (1) A compliance notice may be withdrawn at any time by the inspector who issued the notice (or by another inspector authorised to do so, whether in the particular case or generally for the purposes of this section, by the Director-General of the Department of Commerce) if the inspector is satisfied that the notice was issued in error or is incorrect in some respect.

- (2) The withdrawal has effect when notice of the withdrawal is given to the person to whom the notice was issued.

11 Offence: refusal or failure to comply with compliance notice

An affected employer who, without reasonable excuse, refuses or fails to comply with a requirement imposed by a compliance notice issued to the employer is guilty of an offence.

Maximum penalty—100 penalty units.

Note—

- (1) A person to whom a compliance notice is issued may appeal against the notice to the Supreme Court.
- (2) An appeal to the Supreme Court under this section does not operate to stay the notice the subject of the appeal except as otherwise ordered by the Court.
- (3) The Supreme Court may, on the appeal, confirm the notice, vary it or revoke it.
- (4) If the Supreme Court confirms a compliance notice, the Court may also in the same proceedings determine any application made under section 15 for a civil penalty in respect of the contravention of section 4 to which the notice relates.
- (5) Regulations may be made for or with respect to appeals under this section, including the time and manner in which such an appeal is to be made.
- (6) Without limiting subsection (5), the regulations may apply (whether with or without modification) provisions of the Industrial Relations Act 1996 and the regulations under that Act for or with respect to appeals under this section.

13 Revocation or withdrawal of compliance notice does not prevent issue of another notice

The revocation or withdrawal of a compliance notice does not prevent the issue of another compliance notice.

14 Proceedings for offences or civil penalties not affected by compliance notices

The issue, variation, revocation or withdrawal of a compliance notice does not affect any proceedings for an offence against this Act or for the recovery of a civil penalty in connection with any matter in respect of which the notice was issued.

Division 3 Civil penalty

15 Civil penalty for contravention of section 4

(1) If an industrial court is satisfied that an affected employer of a child has contravened section 4, it may order the employer to pay a pecuniary penalty not exceeding $10,000 (a civil penalty).

(2) Proceedings for a civil penalty may be instituted by an inspector.

Note—

A civil penalty may also be sought in proceedings on an appeal under section 12. See section 12 (4).

(3) Proceedings for a civil penalty may be instituted within 6 years after the contravention.

(4) To avoid doubt, the rules of evidence apply to proceedings for a civil penalty.

(5) Evidence given in proceedings for the recovery of money under Part 2 of Chapter 7 of the Industrial Relations Act 1996 (as applied to and for the purposes of this Part by section 16) is not admissible in proceedings for a civil penalty.

(6) In determining the amount of the pecuniary penalty that an affected employer of a child should be ordered to pay, the industrial court may take into account any of the following matters—

(a) whether or not the employer has made a reasonable effort to provide the child with the minimum conditions of employment for the child,

(b) whether or not the child understood and consented to the provision of the conditions of employment that the employer has actually provided to the child,

(c) any other matter that the court considers relevant.

(7) In any proceedings for a civil penalty, the industrial court may award costs to either party and assess the amount of those costs. Costs cannot be awarded against the prosecutor except in the circumstances in which costs can be awarded against the prosecutor in criminal proceedings.

(8) The following provisions apply to contraventions of section 4 and to proceedings for a civil penalty for such a contravention in the same way as they apply to criminal proceedings for an offence against the Industrial Relations Act 1996—

(a) Sections 400–403 of the Industrial Relations Act 1996 (as applied to and for the purposes of this Part by section 16).
